

HOPE & HELP FOR PERSECUTED CHRISTIANS

SUPPORT FOR NIGERIAN CHRISTIAN WIDOWS

This project will benefit 100 Christian widows who lost their spouse because of persecution. The project will also benefit their children. Over 50,000 Christians have been killed in this area of Nigeria in the last 15 years. These 100 selected widows are only a few of the total victims, as ICR partners estimate there are 25,000 widows in Nigeria as a result of persecution. The women chosen have extreme need.

Losing a husband in a religiously motivated attack leaves families traumatized emotionally. Additionally, homes and crops are often destroyed in these attacks, rendering families homeless. When families flee to other places, they often lose community connections, also. Then, having lost the family breadwinner, the surviving spouse must find work.

This project mitigates their needs, while addressing spiritual needs and emotional trauma, setting these families up for long-term success.

This cost covers each widow's rent, medical costs, and monthly support and is a part of a larger endeavor conducted by our partners, which includes business training and capital, household goods, and clothing.

A team of Nigerian project coordinators oversee the implementation of the project while ministering to the widows' physical, spiritual, and emotional needs in cooperation with a local church.

This approach is aimed at long-term success and sustainability and cares for the women and their children for several years before financial support expires. When they graduate from the program, they are equipped with necessary skills to support their family financially and spiritually.
